

Research - clinical genetics

The clinical genetics department provides an NHS service. Patients are seen following referral by their GPs, hospital consultant or other health professional.

Patients seen by our service may be offered the opportunity to enrol on approved research studies looking into the causes and implications of the condition in their family.